enterprise information systems eis integrate and support business processes across functional boundaries in a supply chain environment and have become increasingly popular over the last 15 years in recent years more and more enterprises world wide have adopted eis such as enterprise resource planning erp for running their businesses previously information systems such as cad cam mrpii and crm were widely used for partial functional integration within a business organization with global operation global supply chain and fierce competition in place there is a need for suitable eis such as erp e business or e commerce systems to integrate extended enterprises in a supply chain environment with the objective of achieving efficiency competency and competitiveness as a result there is a growing demand for researching eis to provide insights into challenges issues and solutions related to the design implementation and management of eis the papers in advances in enterprise information systems were selected from two premier international conferences the international forum of information systems frontiers xian international symposium ifisf june 29 30 2006 xian china and the ifip tc 8 9 international conference on research and practical issues of enterprise information systems confenis 2007 october 14 16 beijing china both events provided an excellent opportunity for eis academicians and practitioners in the world to gather and exchange ideas and present original research in their fields advances in enterprise information systems will be invaluable to scientists researchers and professionals in eis to what level are invisible stimuli processed by the brain in the absence of conscious awareness it is widely accepted that simple visual properties of invisible stimuli are processed however the existence of higher level unconscious processing e g involving semantic or executive functions remains a matter of debate several methodological factors may underlie the discrepancies found in the literature such as different levels of conservativeness in the definition of unconscious or different dependent measures of unconscious processing in this research topic we are particularly interested in yet another factor inherent differences in the amount of information let through by different suppression techniques in the same conditions of well controlled conservatively established invisibility can we show that some of the techniques in the psychophysical magic arsenal e g masking but also visual crowding attentional blink etc reliably lead to higher level unconscious processing than others e g interocular suppression some authors have started investigating this question using multiple techniques in similar settings we argue that this approach should be extended and refined indeed in order to delineate the frontiers of the unconscious mind using a contrastive method one has to disentangle the limits attributable to unawareness itself and those attributable to the technique inducing unawareness the scope of this research topic is to provide a platform for scientists to contribute insights and further experiments addressing this fundamental question
