we know we should speak up and question what is being taken as normal in our work cultures to notice and call out bad behaviour and resist being silenced this book is a guide to what it takes to do this in a way that doesn't expose you to the countermeasures of people who do not like being questioned what is explored through case studies and personal experience are ideas about how to resist being silenced at work where there are competing demands on your time and energy and where people have learnt to tolerate bad and uncivil behaviours just to get the work done there are no magic solutions or calls for decisive action just some modest ideas about what can help you hold onto your voice and your thinking so that when the time is right you can say something that just may help keep us all a bit safer this book investigates the notion of silence as both an oppressing instrument and a powerful tool of resistance under the lenses and practices of cultural production taking a transdisciplinary and transcultural approach to the study of creative and cultural practices the chapters ask how cultural production is dealing with surges of oppressive regimes censorship and fake news and which cultural processes are implied in silencing as well in giving voice to in erasing and in producing small and grand narratives the book reaches beyond dominant instrumental views of contemporary cultural practice to understand culture not only as an expedient to conduct social policy but also as a diagnostic tool and a vernacular space of giving voice to the many small narratives that make the world we live in offering an introduction to an underrepresented area of cultural studies this truly interdisciplinary volume will be of interest to scholars of cultural studies cultural history media studies politics visual studies communication studies history and literature
