theistic religion the midwest book review this book is a profound and eagerly anticipated investigation into what is left of a monotheistic religious spirit notably a minimalist faith that is neither confessional nor credulous articulating this faith as works and as an objectless hope nancy deconstructs christianity in search of the historical and reflective conditions that provided its initial energy working through blanchot and nietzsche re reading heidegger and derrida nancy turns to the epistle of saint james rather than those of saint paul discerning in it the primitive essence of christianity as hope the religion that provided the exit from religion as he terms christianity consists in the announcement of an end it is the announcement that counts however rather than any finality in this announcement there is a proximity to others and to what was once called parousia but parousia is no longer presence it is no longer the return of the messiah rather it is what is near us and does not cease to open and to close a presence deferred yet imminent in a demystified age where we are left with a vision of a self enclosed world in which humans are no longer mortals facing an immortal being but entities whose lives are accompanied by the time of their own decline parousia stands as a question can we venture the risk of a decentered perspective such that the meaning of the world can be found both inside and outside within and without our so immanent world
