this book examines the ways in which new zealand s churches interpreted prime minister jacinda ardern s covid 19 protection framework which saw unvaccinated new zealanders excluded from access to many aspects of civil life including church attendance the book considers the socio political factors that contributed to a high degree of compliance with measures that ardern herself acknowledged created two classes of people in a country that prides itself on being egalitarian and kind it interrogates new zealand s covid response from ethical and theological perspectives inviting readers to listen deeply to the voices of 75 clergy and lay people whose contributions illustrate a range of responses to the covid 19 protection framework and highlight that the biblical injunction to love our neighbour is not as simple as it sounds as one contributor commented i did notice that people tended to have different ideas on who we should love at any point in time were these measures compatible with the gospel how did they impact on already vulnerable disadvantaged or marginalised communities what are the implications of this study for christian praxis this book will be of interest to churches practical and public theologians and others who are interested in global responses to the pandemic

a nuclear attack on a large u s city by terrorists even with a low yield improvised nuclear device ind of 10 kilotons or less would cause a large number of deaths and severe injuries the large number of injured from the detonation and radioactive fallout that would follow would be overwhelming for local emergency response and health care systems to rescue and treat even assuming that these systems and their personnel were not themselves incapacitated by the event the united states has been struggling for some time to address and plan for the threat of nuclear terrorism and other weapons of mass destruction that terrorists might obtain and use the department of homeland security recently contracted with the institute of medicine to hold a workshop summarized in this volume to assess medical preparedness for a nuclear detonation of up to 10 kilotons this book provides a candid and sobering look at our current state of preparedness for an ind and identifies several key areas in which we might begin to focus our national efforts in a way that will improve the overall level of preparedness the use of weapons of mass destruction wmd whether by a hostile nation a terrorist group or an individual poses a potentially serious threat to the u s one of the greatest concerns is that a wmd may fall into the hands of terrorists or that terrorists will develop their own wmd this review evaluated the readiness of the dept of justice doj and its components to respond to a potential wmd incident in addition it examined the readiness of doj components field offices in the national capital region to respond in a coordinated way to a wmd incident the report concluded that doj as a whole and components within the dept have not implemented adequate wmd response plans illustrations
