this book offers an account of how the global popularity of the nordic noir wave of television crime drama such as the killing forbyrdelsen and the bridge broen bron had a profound impact on the production of television crime drama in australia through a series of case studies including miss fisher s murder mysteries the kettering incident secret city and mystery road the authors explore how the australian television industry responded to the new streaming environment by producing shows with international reach and appeal central to this analysis is the concept of total value which expands the notions of cultural and economic value to account for how these crime dramas generate value for the australian screen industry in general their creators in particular as well as the social and financial benefits that may ensue for the communities in which they took place and audiences across the world though the work of irish writers has been paramount in conventional accounts of literary modernism ireland itself only rarely occupies a meaningful position in accounts of modernism s historical trajectory with an itinerary moving not simply among dublin belfast and london but also paris new york addis ababa rome berlin geneva and the world s radio receivers ireland and the problem of information examines the pivotal mediations through which social knowledge was produced in the mid twentieth century organized as a series of cross fading case studies the book argues that an expanded sphere of irish cultural production should be read as much for what it indicates about practices of intermedial circulation and their consequences as for what it reveals about irish writing around the time of the second world war in this way it positions the problem of information as first and foremost an international predicament but one with particular national implications for the irish field in paris noir yonnet tells is about some of the darker quarters of paris on the left bank of the seine centred on the place mauberge and the rue mouffetard as seen from his own experience it is mainly written during the 1940s under the occupation and in the immediate post war period there is a certain amount dealing with the resistance but the main thrust of the book is a paris that existed between the wars and is well known from the film noir but has since disappeared it concentrates on the people rather than places a mixture of ordinary workers tradesmen artists con men and criminals it invests the area with a sense of mystery including occasional supernatural events it is extremely well written often using the language of the inhabitants of the area raymond queneau considered it the greatest book ever written about paris for dedalus it is the perfect counterfoil for j k huysmans parisian sketches which dedalus published in 2004 which showed the darker side of paris pre haussman s big boulevards among the books you must read before you die is paris noir by jacques yonnet raphael sorin concentrating on the seedy area around rue mouffetard which becomes la mouffe in a typically parisian abbreviation yonnet reveals the dark side of the city of light in the 1940s in this secret history of a city the street life of the left bank ticks on much as normal during the occupation though lã opoldie the tart stops turning tricks because the green german uniform does not suit her complexion keep on dancin the killer with a fondness for history rules the roost though describing himself as sceptical
