Miller takes us on an exciting tour of postcolonial and world literature, guiding us through the literary maze of the real and the pretenders to the real. Ngũgĩ wa Thiong'o, author of Wizard of the Crow, writing a new page in the surprisingly long history of literary deceit. Impostors examines a series of literary hoaxes, deceptions that involved flagrant acts of cultural appropriation. This book looks at authors who posed as people they were not in order to claim a different ethnic class or other identity. These writers were, in other words, literary usurpers and appropriators who trafficked in what Christopher

Miller terms the intercultural hoax in the United States such hoaxes are familiar. Forrest Carter's The Education of Little Tree and J. L. Leroy's Sarah are two infamous examples. Miller's contribution is to study hoaxes beyond our borders, employing a comparative framework and bringing French and African identity hoaxes into dialogue with some of their better-known American counterparts. In France, multiculturalism is generally eschewed in favor of universalism, and there should thus be no identities in the American sense to steal. However, as Miller demonstrates, this too is a ruse. French universalism can only go so far, and do so much there is plenty of otherness to appropriate. This French and Francophone tradition of imposture has never received the study it deserves. Taking a novel approach to this understudied tradition, Impostors examines hoaxes in both countries, finding similar practices of deception and questions of harm. In this fascinating study of intercultural literary hoaxes, Christopher L. Miller provides a useful brief history of American literary impostures as a backdrop for his investigation of France's literary history of ethnic usurpation. Henry Louis Gates Jr., New York Times bestselling author.

What do James Frey's A Million Little Pieces, Margaret B. Jones' Love and Consequence, and Wanda Koolmatie's My Own Sweet Time have in common? None of these popular books are what they appear to be. Frey's fraudulent drug addiction memoir was really a semi-fictional novel; Jones' chronicle of her life in a street gang was a complete fabrication; and Koolmatie was not an Aboriginal woman removed from her family as a child, as in her seemingly autobiographical account, but rather a white taxi driver named Leon. Carmen Deceptive Literary Works mislead readers and present librarians with a dilemma: whether making recommendations to patrons or creating catalog records, objectivity and accuracy are crucial and can be difficult when a book's authorship or veracity is in doubt. This informative and entertaining study addresses ethical considerations for deceptive works and proposes cataloging solutions that are provocative and designed to spark debate. An extensive annotated bibliography describes books that are not what they seem.
