essay from the year 2005 in the subject business economics business ethics corporate ethics grade a university of otago department of management course international management language english abstract as long as human societies exist the life of man has been based on norms rules values and practices that governed human behaviour individual and communal shared ethics even make life within society possible as we know it part of this social life is doing business in form of exchanging goods to fulfil basic needs and to achieve higher levels of satisfaction for oneself and for others however to combine moral thinking and acting with today s business activities in a free market economy seems to be counterintuitive somehow both notions do not really fit together still corporate codes of ethics exist this essay consist of two parts each part reflects one question or problem that i found worthy of having more light shed on it the first part answers the question why do corporate codes of ethics exist or why do corporations establish corporate codes of ethics under the basic assumptions that ethics are costly and therefore against the idea of maximising profit which is predominant in the market ideology proving these assumptions is not so easy first the term ethics will be defined and selected theories which could be the basis for codes of ethics will be portrayed then it is important to know what kind of morality is underlying the modern market ideology as we know it following that a correlation is sought between the market morality and corporate ethics ending in the insight that corporate morality is costly and therefore is against economic intuition part one finishes then with a surprisingly simple answer to the question why codes exist the second part brings the findings of the first part in a broader context the considered corporation of part one now grows beyond borders and begins to conduct business globally as a multinational corporation its existing set of corporate codes of ethics are now confronted with other nations societies and cultures and possibly other ethicities whether the company should do as the romans do or not is the major question of the second part closely connected to the keywords relativism and universalism the problems revealed by each approach and possible solutions to them will be shown in part two the conclusion finally summarises the findings of the essay briefly but moreover shows further questions and problems that would be worth to explore in the overlapping areas of applied ethics and international management essay from the year 2010 in the subject communications journalism journalism professions grade 2 university of hamburg language english abstract 1 introduction a lot of essays have been written when it comes to the approach of codes of ethics in journalism in globalizing times where the internet serves as an increasing news source it is of importance to rethink the existing codes of ethics and to frame them in a broader transnational context if this sooner or later leads us to a global or european code of ethics has also been one of the main topics in the media communication research field as tiina laitila for example defines common journalistic codes of ethics within the european countries 1 but whereas common ethical rules and guidelines regarding journalism in general seem more clear and discussed in several studies ethical codes in terms of photojournalism are still not defined in a normative way especially in times of the digital age and its mistrust it brings concerning digital photography there is an increasing need of clear ethical guidelines for photojournalism to demonstrate the importance of codes of ethics in photojournalism the impact visual images possess will be discussed and reconsidered in the beginning on the basis of these ideas this essay will examine whether or not ethical codings exist in the field of photojournalism with a special emphasize on germany it will be analyzed if a german code of ethics can be defined or if a broader transnational code of ethics can be assigned regarding photojournalism as a concluding part the conduct of photographic codes of ethics will be discussed with the help of single conflict images if a photojournalist respects the rules of codes of ethics or not doesn t make his or her work often easier especially when it comes to war or conflict reporting journalists often have the dilemma about how to behave as a photographer in critical situations images as for example the worldwide discussed picture of the starving child in sudan taken by kevin carter in 1993 2 made us aware of the ambivalent decisions journalists often need to make in comparison to print news photography is morally challenging and often difficult to judge considering the obvious participation of the photojournalist the taken picture in its visual expression clearly interweaves the journalist in a more public way than it confronts print journalists publishing a picture with your name shows actually that you as a journalist have been on
