this work is intended to provide an in depth analysis of each and every provision of the 1951 convention and its 1967 protocol special contributions on topics that cut across various provisions or that provide an overview over developments in certain regions of the world complement this commentary

the convention relating to the status of refugees adopted on 28 july 1951 in geneva continues to provide the most comprehensive codification of the rights of refugees yet attempted consolidating previous international instruments relating to refugees the 1951 convention with its 1967 protocol marks a cornerstone in the development of international refugee law at present there are 149 states parties to one or both of these instruments expressing a worldwide consensus on the definition of the term refugee and the fundamental rights to be granted to refugees these facts demonstrate and underline the extraordinary significance of these instruments as the indispensable legal basis of international refugee law this commentary provides for a systematic and comprehensive analysis of the 1951 convention and the 1967 protocol on an article by article basis exposing the interrelationship between the different articles and discussing the latest developments in international refugee law in addition several thematic contributions analyse questions of international refugee law which are of general significance such as regional developments the interrelationship between refugee law and general human rights law as well as the relationship between refugee law and the law of the sea the british pharmacopoeia has provided official standards for the quality of substances medicinal products and articles used in medicine since its first publication in 1864 it is used in over 100 countries and remains an essential global reference in pharmaceutical research and development and quality control this book explores how these standards have been achieved through a comprehensive review of the history and development of the pharmacopoeias in the uk from the early london edinburgh and dublin national pharmacopoeias to the creation of the british pharmacopoeia and its evolution over 150 years trade in medicinal substances and products has always been global and the british pharmacopoeia is placed in its global context as an instrument of the british empire as it first sought to cover the needs of countries such as india and latterly as part of its role in international harmonisation of standards in europe and elsewhere the changing contents of the pharmacopoeias over this period reflect the changes in medical practice and the development of dosage forms from products dispensed by pharmacists to commercially manufactured products from tinctures to the latest monoclonal antibody products the book will be of equal value to historians of medicine and pharmacy as to practitioners of medicine pharmacy and pharmaceutical analytical chemistry the dynamics of eu external energy relations examines the behaviour of the european commission in eu external energy relations paying particular attention to the dynamics existing between the commission and the member states it examines the commission as a constrained policy entrepreneur trying to expand its power budget and competences yet frustrated by member states protective of their national sovereignty analysing the commission as agent and the member states as its principals the book proposes a more nuanced examination of behaviour where the agent tries to satisfy its own interests but is still responsive to the preferences of the principals using a wide range of original primary and secondary data the book argues that eu external energy relations reflect the dynamics of the relations between the commission and the member states this book will be of key interest to scholars and students of european union studies and politics eu energy and foreign policy and more broadly to european politics and international relations the european union eu support for good governance reforms has been the cornerstone of its conditionality and funding policies and contributed its role as a transformative power this book re evaluates the eu s governance promotion capacity both within the eu and beyond its borders in light of the simultaneous decline in democracy in europe in particular and across the whole world in general the book is divided into three parts part i focuses on the eu s good governance transfer to member and accession countries part ii examines how and to what extent the eu s governance promotion strategies travel beyond its borders and focuses on neighbours partners and aid recipient countries especially in africa part iii turns to other regional and global actors and discusses the implications of illiberal contesters such as china and russia on the future of eu s good governance promotion efforts the findings of the book bring fresh insights for the scope and depth of the eu s governance transfer capacity
