this book explores the interweaving of several of derrida s characteristic concerns with themes that paul explores in romans it argues that the central concern of romans is with the question of justice a justice that must be thought outside of law on the basis of grace or gift the many perplexities that arise from thus trying to think justice outside of law are clarified by reading derrida on such themes as justice and law gift and exchange duty and debt hospitality cosmopolitanism and pardon this interweaving of paul and derrida shows that paul may be read as a thinker who wrestles with real problems that are of concern to anyone who thinks it also shows that derrida far from being the enemy of theological reflection is himself a necessary companion to the thinking of the biblical theologian against the grain of what passes for common wisdom this book argues that both derrida and paul are indispensable guides to a new way of thinking about justice this book seeks to demonstrate that the letter to the romans may be seen as an attempt by a subordinate group to redress actual and potential issues of confrontation with the empire and to offer hope even in the crisis of facing death paul demonstrates that it is god s peace and not rome s peace that is important that loyalty to the exalted jesus as lord and to the kingdom of god not jupiter and rome leads to salvation that grace flows from jesus as christ and lord and not from the benefactions of the emperor if the resurrection of jesus the crucified criminal of the roman empire demonstrates god s power over the universe and death the very instrument of roman control then the christ believer is encouraged to face suffering and death in the hope of salvation through this power paul s theology emerges from and is inextricably bound to the politics of his day the scriptures of his people and to the critical fact that the god who is one and lord of all is still in charge of the world the essays in this volume address a closely interconnected set of questions to be true to its mission what function is the church meant to perform what does the faith of christians contribute to the human perception of justice what is the theological significance of action undertaken by christians for political or social transformation is justice to be looked on as one of the moral virtues that it is incumbent on christians to practice or has it a more intrinsic link to the gift of faith which christians have received does the following of christ call christians away from social systems into the new creation or is the call extended to them to concern themselves with the social systems which shape human beings from the foreword contributors include avery dultes william dych john donahue john langan david hollenbach richard roach william walsh the much acclaimed present day philosophical turn to the letters of saint paul points to a profound consonance between ancient and modern thought such is the bold claim of this study in which scholars from contemporary continental philosophy new testamentary studies and ancient philosophy discuss with each other the meaning paul s terms pistis faith in this volume this theme discusses in detail the threefold relation between paul and 1 continental thought 2 the graeco roman world and 3 political theology it is shown that pistis does not only concern a mode of knowing but rather concerns the human ethos or mode of existence as a whole moreover it is shown that the present day political theological interest in paul can be seen as an attempt to recuperate paul s pistis in this comprehensive sense finally an important discussion concerning the specific ontological implications and background of this reinterpretation of pistis is examined by comparing the ancient ontological commitments to those of the present day philosophers thus the volume offers an insight in a crucial consonance of ancient and modern thought concerning the question of pistis in paul while not forgetting to stipulate important differences this book offers a close reading of romans that treats paul as a radical political thinker by showing the relationship between paul s perspective and that of secular political theorists turning to both ancient political philosophers plato aristotle and cicero and contemporary post marxists agamben badiou derrida and Žižek jennings presents romans as a sustained argument for a new sort of political thinking concerned with the possibility and constitution of just socialities reading romans as an essay on messianic politics in conversation with ancient and postmodern political theory challenges the stereotype of paul as a reactionary theologian who invented christianity and demonstrates his importance for all regardless of religious affiliation or academic guild who dream and work for a society based on respect rather than domination division and death in the current context of unjust global empires constituted by avarice arrogance and violence jennings finds in paul a stunning vision for creating just societies outside the law theologian douglas harink invites readers to rediscover romans as a treatise on justice tracing paul s thinking on this theme through a sequential reading of the book and finding in each passage facets of the gospel s primary claim that god accomplishes justice in the death and resurrection of jesus messiah we who live in this post modern late twentieth century culture are still children of dualism for a variety of rather complex reasons we continue to split apart and treat as radical opposites body and spirit medicine and religion sacred and secular private and public love and justice men and women though this is still our strong tendency we are beginning to discover both the futility and the harm of such dualistic splitting peoples of many ancient cultures might smile at the belatedness of our discovery concerning the commonalities of medicine and religion a cursory glance back at ancient egypt samaria babylonia persia greece and rome would disclose a common thread the close union of religion and medicine both were centrally concerned with healing health and wholeness the person was understood as a unity of body mind and spirit the priest and the physician frequently were combined in the same individual one of the important contributions of this significant volume of essays is the sustained attack upon dualism from a variety of vantage points virtually all of the authors unmask the varied manifestations of dualism in religion and medicine urging a more holistic approach since the editor has provided an excellent summary of each article i shall not attempt to comment on specific contributions rather i wish to highlight three broad themes which i find notable for theological ethics st paul s cosmic war myth shows how paul used military symbolism as a way to present an almost complete version of his gospel parallel to his legal and personal versions which use quite different types of symbols by drawing together all paul s military symbols the book enables readers to see beneath the surface to the relatively complete cosmic war myth that he probably entertained in his imagination the book elaborates j c baker s emphasis on paul as an apocalypticist and then suggests what value this military apocalyptic symbolism has for modern readers
