gives to anthropological reflection a new starting point and will become the compulsory reference for all our debates in the years to come. Claude Lévi-Strauss's *On the French Edition of *Beyond Nature and Culture has been a major influence in European intellectual life since its French publication in 2005. Here finally it is brought to English language readers. At its heart is a question central to both anthropology and philosophy: what is the relationship between nature and culture? Culture as a collective human making of art, language, and so forth is often seen as essentially different from nature, which is portrayed as a collective of the nonhuman world of plants, animals, geology, and natural forces. Philippe Descola shows this essential difference to be not only a Western notion but also a very recent one, drawing on ethnographic examples from around the world and theoretical understandings from cognitive science, structural analysis, and phenomenology. He formulates a sophisticated new framework: the four ontologies—animism, totemism, naturalism, and analogism—to account for all the ways we relate ourselves to nature. By thinking beyond nature and culture as a simple dichotomy, Descola offers a fundamental reformulation by which anthropologists and philosophers can see the world afresh. A compelling and original account of where the nature/culture binary has come from, where it might go, and what we might imagine in its place. Somatosphere, the most important book coming from French anthropology since Claude Lévi-Strauss's Anthropologie structurale. Bruno Latour, author of An Inquiry Into Modes of Existence. Descola's challenging new worldview should be of special interest to a wide range of scientific and academic disciplines, from anthropology to zoology. Highly recommended choice.

This second edition of the widely praised Anthropology in Theory issues in epistemology features a variety of updates, revisions, and new readings. In its comprehensive presentation of issues in the history of anthropological theory and epistemology over the past century, it provides a comprehensive selection of 60 readings and an insightful overview of the evolution of anthropological theory, revised and updated to reflect an on-going strength and diversity of the discipline in recent years. With new readings pointing to innovative directions in the development of anthropological research, it identifies crucial concepts that reflect the practice of engaging with theory, particular ways of thinking, analyzing, and reflecting that are unique to anthropology. It includes excerpts of seminal anthropological works, key classic and contemporary debates in the discipline, and cutting-edge new theorizing. It reveals broader debates in the social sciences, including the relationship between society and culture, language and cultural meanings, structure and agency, identities and technologies, subjectivities and trans-locality, and meta-theory, ontology, and epistemology.

anthropology has traditionally relied on a spatially localized society or culture as its object of study the essays in culture power place demonstrate how in recent years this anthropological convention and its attendant assumptions about identity and cultural difference have undergone a series of important challenges in light of increasing mass migration and the transnational cultural flows of a late capitalist postcolonial world the contributors to this volume examine shifts in anthropological thought regarding issues of identity place power and resistance this collection of both new and well known essays begins by critically exploring the concepts of locality and community first as they have had an impact on contemporary global understandings of displacement and mobility and second as they have had a part in defining identity and subjectivity itself with sites of discussion ranging from a democratic spain to a puerto rican barrio in north philadelphia from burundian hutu refugees in tanzania to asian landscapes in rural california from the silk factories of hangzhou to the long sought after home of the palestinians these essays examine the interplay between changing schemes of categorization and the discourses of difference on which these concepts are based the effect of the placeless mass media on our understanding of place and the forces that make certain identities viable in the world and others not are also discussed as are the intertwining of place making identity and resistance as they interact with the meaning and consumption of signs finally this volume offers a self reflective look at the social and political location of anthropologists in relation to the questions of culture power and place the effect of their participation in what was once seen as their descriptions of these constructions contesting the classical idea of culture as the shared the agreed upon and the orderly
