in 1983 at the age of thirty dissident artist ma jian finds himself divorced by his wife separated from his daughter betrayed by his girlfriend facing arrest for spiritual pollution and severely disillusioned with the confines of life in beijing so with little more than a change of clothes and two bars of soap ma takes off to immerse himself in the remotest parts of china his journey would last three years and take him through smog choked cities and mountain villages from scenes of barbarity to havens of tranquility remarkably written and subtly moving the result is an insight into the teeming contradictions of china that only a man who was both insider and outsider in his own country could have written during the early modern period muslims in china began to embrace the chinese characteristics of their heritage several scholar teachers incorporated tenets from traditional chinese education into their promotion of islamic knowledge as a result some sino muslims established an educational network which utilized an islamic curriculum made up of arabic persian and chinese works the corpus of chinese islamic texts written in this system is collectively labeled the han kitab interpreting islam in china explores the sino islamic intellectual tradition through the works of some its brightest luminaries three prominent sino muslim authors are used to illustrate transformations within this tradition wang daiyu liu zhi and ma dixin kristian petersen puts these scholars in dialogue and demonstrates the continuities and departures within this tradition through an analysis of their writings he considers several questions how malleable are religious categories and why are they variously interpreted across time how do changing historical circumstances affect the interpretation of religious beliefs and practices how do individuals navigate multiple sources of authority how do practices inform belief overall he shows that these authors presented an increasingly universalistic portrait of islam through which sino muslims were encouraged to participate within the global community of muslims the growing emphasis on performing the pilgrimage to mecca comprehensive knowledge of the qur an and personal knowledge of arabic stimulated communal engagement petersen demonstrates that the integration of sino muslims within a growing global environment where international travel and communication was increasingly possible was accompanied by the rising self awareness of a universally engaged muslim community
