seminar paper from the year 2016 in the subject economics other grade 1 7 university of kassel institut für volkswirtschaftslehre ivwl course philosophy of economics language english abstract the question i want to examine in this paper is if and how falsification as a method and popper's philosophy of science in general is appropriate for and applicable to economic research to begin with i will start with a short introduction about karl popper and his philosophy then i will explain and evaluate the concept of falsification with its strengths and weaknesses and its use for science in general afterwards i will examine the influence and actual usage of falsification in economics in general to finally evaluate the chances and limits of the concept in this area of science it is often said that a significant characteristic of economic research is the strong staying power of theories even with contradicting empirical evidence moreover the scientific character of economic science is often questioned in this context economic research is criticised for a lack of falsification or even a lack of falsifiability but is it true and what does this mean the concept of falsification as a deductive method was brought up and made popular by the austro british philosopher karl popper in the 1930s in contrast to the idea of gaining truth or principles through a lot of empiric observations inductive method he claimed that it is logically only possible to refute general statements by empirical observations consequently popper advocates for a method of research through trial and error science should use the method of falsification and for him the use of it is the demarcation criterion between science and non science karl popper's methodological writings have been a cause of debate since the 1930s this scientific method is nowadays established particularly in natural sciences where you can tell more easily if a theory is wrong than in other disciplines economic research is part of the second group of disciplines where we often find huge differences between popper's prescriptions and the common practice and where normative statements are often part of all considerations

this document presented by the economic commission for latin america and the caribbean eclac to its member states at its thirty sixth session provides an analytical complement to the 2030 agenda for sustainable development from a structuralist perspective and from the point of view of the latin american and caribbean countries the proposals made here stem from the need to achieve progressive structural change in order to incorporate more knowledge into production ensure social inclusion and combat the negative impacts of climate change the reflections and proposals for advancing towards a new development pattern are geared to achieving equality and environmental sustainability in these proposals the creation of global and regional public goods and the corresponding domestic policies form the core for expanding the structuralist tradition towards a global keynesianism and a development strategy centred around an environmental big push
