what is the role of love in opening and sustaining the temporal worlds we inhabit one of the leading scholars in philosophy and the history of religious thought thomas a carlson here traces this question through christian theology twentieth century phenomenological and deconstructive philosophy and nineteenth century individualism revising augustine s insight that when we love a place we dwell there in the heart carlson also pointedly resists lines of thought that seek to transcend loss and its grief by loving all things within the realm of the eternal through masterful readings of heidegger derrida marion nancy emerson and nietzsche carlson shows that the fragility and sorrow of mortal existence in its transience do not in fact contradict love but instead empower love to create a world this book is a collection of essays on ghostly fiction by henry james the contributors analyze james s use of the ghost story as a subgenre and the difficult theoretical issues that James's texts pose

American Impersonal brings together some of the most influential scholars now working in American literature to explore the impact of one of America's leading literary critics Sharon Cameron. It engages directly with certain arguments that Cameron has articulated throughout her career, most notably her late work on the question of impersonality. In doing so, it provides responses to questions fundamental to literary criticism such as the nature of personhood, the logic of subjectivity in depersonalized communities, the question of the human within the problematic of the impersonal, how impersonality relates to the posthuman, and additionally, some essays respond to the current aesthetic turn in literary scholarship and engage with the lyric, currently much debated, as well as the larger questions of poetics and the logic of genre. These crucial issues are addressed from the perspective of an American literary and philosophical tradition and progress chronologically, starting from Melville and Emerson and moving via Dickinson, Thoreau, and Hawthorne to Henry James and Wallace Stevens. This historical perspective adds the appeal of revisiting the American nineteenth-century literary and philosophical tradition and even rewriting it.

1 New York Times bestselling author Sharon Cameron returns with a stunning story about the fight to survive and find love in the face of the ugliest of nightmares based on the true story of two heroes and their resistance in the Sobibor death camp during the Holocaust. Saartje has already survived two concentration camps when she is sent to Sobibor, a death camp that is infamous for forcing the inmates to perform sick entertainment for their Nazi guards if they wish to live. When Saartje is paired with a young Polish man and ordered to waltz, she doesn't understand the German command, but her partner does. The young Polish man, Chaim Engel, doesn't know how to waltz, but Saartje does. Together, the pair dance well enough to live through the night, and from that moment on, Chaim and Saartje will do whatever it takes to keep each other alive. When on October 14th, 1943, a prisoner revolt begins, Saartje and Chaim escape alongside 300 other prisoners amid the confusion and bloodshed. With only each other, the pair must survive the ensuing manhunt and find a place to hide if they want any chance of making it out of the war alive. Based on the true stories of Chaim and Saartje Engel, 1 New York Times bestselling author of The Light in Hidden Places, Sharon Cameron crafts an evocative, beautiful thriller that celebrates hope, survival, and the power of love in the face of impossible odds.
