reading and writing for pleasure represent issues of global concern and interest in policy research and practice underpinned by evidence illustrating their importance for young people's academic, social and emotional experiences and outcomes in the face of a sustained decline in children's enjoyment in both reading and writing. This highly significant book presents findings from a three year study of research and practice that nurtures young people's engagement as readers and writers. The book offers a rich understanding of the study highlighting the commonalities and synergies identified from the research literature and diverse practice contexts. It introduces a new and powerful reading and writing framework for practice for schools and charitable literacy programmes. The authors offer practical strategies and recommendations throughout for practitioners, researchers and policy makers who wish to advance this agenda in their own contexts. Areas covered include the nature of reading and writing for pleasure, literate identities, motivating readers and writers, social interactions, role models and connected communities, future research practice and policy. This field defining text is a key resource for all those committed to halting the decline in young people's engagement as volitional readers and writers.

This brief edition of a groundbreaking textbook addresses the need for college students to develop critical reading, writing and thinking skills for self defense in the contentious arena of American civic rhetoric. Designed for first year or more advanced composition and critical thinking courses, it is one third shorter than the original edition, more affordable for students and easier for teachers to cover in a semester or quarter. It incorporates up to date new readings and analysis of controversies like the growing inequality of wealth in America and the debates in the 2008 presidential campaign expressed in opposing viewpoints from the political left and right. Exercises help students understand the ideological positions and rhetorical patterns that underlie such opposing views. Widely debated issues of whether objectivity is possible and whether there is a liberal or conservative bias in news and entertainment media as well as in education itself are foregrounded as topics for rhetorical analysis.

Research shows that fully integrating reading and writing results in better student performance. From reading to writing, makes explicit connections between these skills and helps students develop them simultaneously. Students explore topics such as using YouTube, the success of Starbucks and the newest generation at work. In high interest reading and writing assignments, in addition, corpus based vocabulary helps students understand what they read and gives them the words they need for their own writing. Highlights contextualized writing models and carefully crafted exercises direct students through the writing process. Step by step process writing assignments with peer feedback, editing and revising help students master common academic genres and rhetorical forms. Bridge activities help students make the connection between reading, writing and vocabulary. MyEnglishLab writing
