this book explores the way in which church architecture from the earliest centuries of christianity has been shaped by holy bones the physical remains or relics of those whom the church venerated as saints the church's holy dead continued to exercise an influence on the living from beyond the grave and their earthly remains provided a focus for prayer the memoriae house churches and crypts of early christian rome the elaborately decorated monuments containing the bodies of the bishops of merovingian gaul the revival of ring crypts in the carolingian empire the crypts tomb shrines and later high shrines of medieval england all demonstrate how the presence of a holy body within a church influenced its very architecture this is the first complete modern study of this hitherto somewhat neglected aspect of medieval church architecture in western europe society and consciousness over the course of centuries enmeshed in the multicultural complexity of the ottoman and british empires modern cyprus offers a case study of how colonized and colonizing populations may turn to the same religious repertoires for understanding themselves and one another telling opposing stories with shared symbols and claiming the means of interpretation as a path of cultural resistance as a case study in interreligious imagination and the political power of vernacular theology the book speaks of psychosocial dynamics that far exceed their enactment in cyprus it shows that christian saints mediated diversely in material and intellectual culture may not only propose magnetic alternatives to the world as it is but also directly aid in forming christian publics for liberative politics in the present
