the prevailing view of industrialization has focussed on technology capital entrepreneurship and the institutions that enabled them to be deployed labour was often equated with other factors of production and assigned a relatively passive role yet it was labour absorption and the improvement of the quality of labour over the course of several centuries that underscored the timing pace and quality of global industrialization while science and technology developed in the west and whereas the use of fossil fuels especially coal and oil were vital to this process the more recent history has been underpinned by the development of comparatively resource and energy saving technology without which the diffusion of industrialization would not have been possible the labour intensive resource saving path which emerged in east asia under the influence of western technology and institutions and is diffusing across the world suggests the most realistic route humans could take for a further diffusion of industrialization which might respond to the rising expectations of living standards without catastrophic environmental degradation this title considers the main similarities and differences in the industrialization processes of the major economies based on long term research this book comprehensively and systematically discusses the industrialization process in china analyzing the level characteristics achievements and experiences as well as the problems faced it also provides answers to important questions related to economic development and the industrialization process in china such as what level of industrialization china has achieved and whether china can become an industrialized country lastly it offers an explanation of china s economic development from the perspective of industrialization this book reviews china s industrialization from the perspective of inclusiveness and discusses the challenges arising from its industrialization process and how the chinese people view and seek to overcome these challenges by examining china s industrialization in the context of the global economy it reveals how china should be further integrated into and contribute to the great endeavor of worldwide industrialization and human development in the new era of economic globalization allowing it to become a responsible stakeholder through its national rejuvenation for the benefit of the entire world in this book peer vries is the first scholar to provide an extensive test of the claim that industrialization in east asia in particular in japan between the meiji restoration and world war two would have been much more labour intensive than industrialization in the west he does this by systematically comparing the role and importance of labour and capital in japan and in a number of western countries at a similar stage of their industrial development he uses macro economic data as well as specific observations by people at the time it turns out that there is no reason to distinguish a specific labour intensive japanese route of industrialization his comparative analysis provides us with a better understanding of the logic of industrialization in both west and east kemp explores how the economic advancement and political development of european nations contributed to and were influenced by the cycle of change from agrarian societies to industrial enclaves one feature of this book is the clarification of the development mechanism of asia as a regional economy for over half a century based on an asian economy within the global economy approach that goes beyond the single country analytical framework the development of emerging economies has caught the world s attention from the newly industrializing countries or newly industrializing economies of the 1980s to the brics entering this century general economics cannot clarify the internal mechanism of the changing of newly industrialized economies led by asia this book clarifies such regional development structure by focusing on the direct investments of multinational firms and the importance of gradual changes of specific policies adopted by newly industrialized economies moreover the book concretely deals with the us china trade war and china s belt and road initiative bri as a problem of asian economies in so doing the book not only perceives the structural change of the global economy as a structural change from a us centric global economy of the twentieth century to a china centric one but also focuses on the birthing of a new growth frontier in the world economy under a crisis brought about by a war for hegemony between the us and china the investment initiative through china s bri has prompted the investment competition between japan and the us which has made even stronger the possibility of giving birth to a new economic frontier in afro eurasia another feature is the consideration of various issues that confront asian countries in their search for economic development using the philippines as a case study the analysis of the study points to the importance of a shared growth perspective which is based on an asian development model and discusses the challenge of overcoming the issues of the economic development model within the region at the same time this book studies the significance and new issues as a region of the economy and overseas policies of attention drawer china providing an overview of industrial development using a variety of different approaches and perspectives the handbook of industrial development brings together expert contributors and highlights the current multiple and interdependent challenges that can only be addressed by an interdisciplinary approach chapters discuss the existing issues faced by industry following both the digital and environmental transitions highlighting their regional roots and the interplay with the wider institutional framework malaysia industrialization with information on occupational structure and unemployment economic development is stressed industrial policy assessed production of industries with detailed list of industrial products problems connected with fiscal policy and tariffs foreign investment and banks over the last two centuries the experiences of the first wave of industrialized countries in europe and the us and the more recent experiences of the east asian tigers indonesia malaysia thailand china india and vietnam have illustrated the transformative nature of industrialization there are reasons to believe that industrialization will continue to be one of the major engines of growth transformation and socioeconomic development industrial development enables a more rapid advancement toward developed country living standards but many challenges remain and new challenges have arisen these include integration into global value chains the shrinking of policy space in the present international order the rise of the asian driver economies new opportunities provided by resource based industrialization the accelerating pace of technological change in manufacturing how to deal with jobless growth in manufacturing creating adequate systems of financial intermediation and how to respond to the threats of global warming and climate change under present conditions it may be more difficult than ever for the poorer developing countries to foster industrial development and structural change they face a more complex and daunting set of circumstances than the developing countries that embarked on industrialization after 1950 these changing and challenging circumstances require new thinking and in particular new paradigms to guide researchers policy makers and international development organizations in the future the book includes chapters on the experiences of africa latin america china and indonesia as wells as thematic chapters on structural change jobless growth the evolution of industrial policy and the challenges of environmental sustainability and climate change it provides a timely analysis of the circumstances and challenges facing developing countries in industrialization and offer fresh ideas for new paradigms to carry forward industrial policy in the future this new edition is fully updated and revised incorporating the massive changes in the ussr and china in the 1980 s it offers a series of case studies charting the progress and assessing the achievement of six industrializing countries outside the western world it covers the whole range of economic approaches from those depending wholly on market forces to those that are completely planned
