it has often been noted that the protestant reformation of the early sixteenth century witnessed a revived interest in the scriptural notions of prophets and prophecy drawing from both late medieval apocalyptic expectations of the immanent end of the world and from a humanist revival of biblical studies the prophet appeared to many as a suitable role model for the protestant preacher a prominent proponent of this prophetic model was the swiss theologian and church leader heinrich bullinger 1504 1575 this study by daniël timmerman presents the first in depth investigation of bullinger s concept of prophecy and his understanding of the prophetic office it also engages with the history of the zurich institute for the study of the scriptures which has become widely known as the prophezei this collection of essays examines the respective religious and social functions of kings and prophets as they are presented in the biblical narratives biblical kingship is easily shown to be a specific instance of an ancient and widespread institution sacred monarchy that was the pivot of most state organizations throughout antiquity prophetic authority is described as a typical institution of ancient hebrew society the difference between monarchy and prophecy is radical because the former implies a hereditary power and is upheld by its subjects who feed their kings with taxes while the latter derives its authority from allegedly direct divine inspiration and though it is also economically dependent it is not explicitly presented as being based upon systematic exploitation cristiano grottanelli interprets the rise of prophecy as a consequence of a crisis of monarchical structures at the beginning of the iron age and connects it to similar phenomena attested in ancient greek texts derived from a similar crisis though monarchy finally won the day in the ancient mediterranean in a new imperial form the new literatures in greek and hebrew consonantic and alphabetic scripts shaped nonmonarchic figures to which they attributed some of the functions previously pertaining to monarchy these new literatures produced by two cultures that were both highly literate and organized according to nonmonarchical principles diverged radically in their development and final outcomes in the hebrew tradition monolatry and an official canon of sacred writings were the final result the prophetic principle was thus overcome by a new ideological construction centered upon inspired scriptures rather than upon the impromptu performances of inspired persons in using the prophetic principle against the monarchic the canonical texts paradoxically shaped their own authority above that of living prophets
