famed critic terry eagleton takes a serious if often amusing look at the meaning of life eagleton first examines how centuries of thinkers and writers from marx and schopenhauer to shakespeare sartre and beckett have responded to the ultimate question of meaning he suggests however that it is only in modern times that the question has become problematic but instead of tackling it head on many of us cope with the feelings of meaninglessness in our lives by filling them with everything from football to fundamentalism he argues instead that the meaning of life is a matter of living in a certain way a certain quality depth abundance and intensity of life

a collection of essays on writers and writing by the booker shortlisted novelist and critic writing about real lives takes various forms which overlap and may be combined with each other biography autobiography biographical criticism biographical fiction memoir confession diary in these thoughtful and enlightening essays david lodge considers some particularly interesting examples of life writing and contributes several of his own the subjects include celebrated modern british writers such as graham greene kingsley amis muriel spark and alan bennett and two major figures from the past anthony trollope and h g wells lodge examines connections between the style and the man in the diaries of the playwright simon gray and the cultural criticism of terry eagleton and recalls how his own literary career was entwined with that of his friend malcolm bradbury all except one of the subjects princess diana are or were themselves professionally in writing making this collection a kind of casebook of the splendours and miseries of authorship in a final essay lodge describes the genesis and compositional method of his recent novel about h g wells a man of parts and engages with the critical controversies that have been provoked by the increasing popularity of narrative and dramatic writing that combines fact and fiction drawing on david lodge s long experience as a novelist and critic lives in writing is a fascinating study of the interface between life and literature the culture story of evangelicalism during the second half of the twentieth century has been well told it is important now to think about the theological mission of the church in an ever increasing post christian and post partisan context what is the theologian s calling at the beginning of the third millennium how do global realities impact the mission of evangelical theology what sense can be made of the unity of evangelical theology in light of its many diverse voices contributors os guinness michael s horton richard lints bruce mccormack mark noll j i packer gary parrett rodney peterson cornelius planting a tite tienou kevin j vanhoozer adonis vidu and miroslav volf can fiction teach us how to live this study offers a fresh take on the north american short story exploring how the genre has engaged in the construction and circulation of life knowledge echoing the resurgence of short story scholarship in recent years it thus contributes a genre focused perspective to the growing field of literature and knowledge studies drawing on stories from the late 19th century to the present by authors such as henry james f scott fitzgerald eudora welty junot díaz and alice munro michael basseler examines how knowledge about life and how to live it is generically constituted and vice versa how literary genres such as the short story are embedded in broader cultural frameworks of knowledge production through three intertwined histories jane austen s textual lives offers a new way of approaching and reading a very familiar author one is a history of the transmission and transformation of jane austen through manuscripts critical editions biographies and adaptations a second provides a conspectus of the development of english studies as a discipline in which the original and primary place of textual criticism is recovered and a third reviews the role of oxford university press in shaping a canon of english texts in the twentieth century jane austen can be discovered in all three since her rise to celebrity status at the end of the nineteenth century jane austen has occupied a position within english speaking culture that is both popular and canonical accessible and complexly inaccessible fixed and certain yet wonderfully amenable to shifts of sensibility and cultural assumptions the implied contradiction was represented in the early twentieth century by on the one hand the austen family s continued management censorship and sentimental marketing of the sweet lady novelist of the hampshire countryside and on the other by r w chapman s 1923 clarendon press edition of the novels of jane austen which subjected her texts to the kind of scholarly probing reserved till then for classical greek and roman authors obscured by centuries of attrition it was to be almost fifty years before the clarendon press considered it necessary to recalibrate the reputation of another popular english novelist in this way beginning with specific encounters with three kinds of textual work and the problems clues or challenges to interpretation they continue to present kathryn sutherland goes on to consider the absence of a satisfactory critical theory of biography that can help us address the partial life and ends with a discussion of the screen adaptations through which the texts continue to live on throughout jane austen s textual identities provide a means to explore the wider issue of what text is and to argue the importance of understanding textual space as itself a powerful agent established only by recourse to further interpretations and fictions what if anything does jesus of nazareth have to do with philosophy this question motivates this collection of essays from leading theologians philosophers and biblical scholars part i portrays jesus in his first century intellectual and historical context attending to intellectual influences and contributions and contemporaneous similar patterns of thought part ii examines how jesus influenced two of the most prominent medieval philosophers it considers the seeming conceptual shift from hebraic categories of thought to distinctively greco roman ones in later christian philosophers part iii considers the significance of jesus for some prominent contemporary philosophical topics including epistemology and the meaning of life the focus is not so much on how christianity figures in such topics as on how jesus makes distinctive contributions to them this book examines the post 9 11 god debate in the west through a close study of prominent english god debaters richard dawkins karen armstrong christopher hitchens and terry eagleton adrian rosenfeldt demonstrates that new atheist and religious apologist ideas and arguments about god science and identity are driven by mythic autobiographical narratives and protestant or catholic cultural heritage this study is informed by criticism of the new atheist polemic as being positivistic and the religious apologists as propagating sophisticated theology in both cases the god debaters are perceived as disassociating themselves from human lived experience it is through reconnecting the god debaters intellectual ideas to their cultural and social background that the god debate can be grounded in a recognisable human reality that eludes reductive distinctions and disembodied abstractions this is the twentieth in a series of occasional volumes devoted to studies in british art published by the yale center for british art and the paul mellon centre for studies in british art and distributed by yale university press book jacket herbert mccabe struck those who met him alasdair macintyre anthony kenny terry eagleton denys turner or those who read his writings david burrell stanley hauerwas for his high intelligence he was the most intelligent philosopher after the death of karl popper his philosophical inquiries on god and the human being have yet to be properly understood not because they were abstruse clarity was mccabe s inexorable sword but because of their dizzying depth for which many are not yet prepared this is the first comprehensive study of mccabe a person who preferred speaking to writing and left only the short fragmented and dispersed texts of his lectures and sermons but in this book to use david burrell s words manni has managed to get inside mccabe s mind and assemble together for the first time the disiecta membra of a powerful system of thought terry eagleton s book in this vital new series from blackwell focuses on discriminating different meanings of culture as a way of introducing to the general reader the contemporary debates around it vols for 1969 include a section of abstracts postmodern texts have generally been associated with a radical challenge of established conventions and with an anything goes mentality which seems to exclude serious ethical discussion while the postmodern texts of the american novel and short story writers donald barthelme and william gass indeed challenge traditional ethical rules they are nonetheless deeply concerned with moral questions using contemporary ethics as its theoretical framework the study shows that the fiction of barthelme and gass not only makes readers aware of the complexity of ethical issues but also argues that the premise for good ethical behavior is to have the right postmodern attitude to be open minded flexible and able to deal with the ambiguities of life retrospectively these findings can also be applied to other postmodern writers to reveal the hidden ethical dimensions of their fictions
