an original and eclectic view of cookbooks as political acts cookbooks are not political in conventional ways they neither proclaim as do manifestos nor do they forbid as do laws they do not command agreement as do arguments and their stipulations often lack specificity cook until browned yet as repositories of human taste cookbooks transmit specific blends of flavor texture and nutrition across space and time cookbooks both form and reflect who we are in cookbook politics kennan ferguson explores the sensual and political implications of these repositories demonstrating how they create nations establish ideologies shape international relations and structure communities cookbook politics argues that cookbooks highlight aspects of our lives we rarely recognize as political taste production domesticity collectivity and imagination and considers the ways in which cookbooks have or do politics from the most overt to the most subtle cookbooks turn regional diversity into national unity as pellegrino artusi s science in the kitchen and the art of eating well did for italy in 1891 politically affiliated organizations compile and sell cookbooks for example the early united nations published the world s favorite recipes from the first baptist church of midland tennessee s community cookbook to julia child s mastering the art of french cooking to the italian futurists proto fascist guide to food preparation ferguson demonstrates how cookbooks mark desires and reveal social commitments your table becomes a representation of who you are authoritative yet flexible collective yet individualized cooperative yet personal cookbooks invite participation editing and transformation created to convey flavor and taste across generations communities and nations they enact the continuities and changes of social lives their functioning in the name of creativity and preparation with readers happily consuming them in similar ways makes cookbooks an exemplary model for democratic politics big night 1996 ratatouille 2007 and julie and julia 2009 are more than films about food they serve a political purpose in the kitchen around the table and in the dining room these films use cooking and eating to explore such themes as ideological pluralism ethnic and racial acceptance gender equality and class flexibility but not as progressively as you might think feasting our eyes takes a second look at these and other modern american food films to emphasize their conventional approaches to nation gender race sexuality and social status devoured visually and emotionally these films are particularly effective defenders of the status quo feasting our eyes looks at hollywood films and independent cinema documentaries and docufictions from the 1990s to today and frankly assesses their commitment to racial diversity tolerance and liberal political ideas laura lindendorf and fabio parasecoli find women and people of color continue to be treated as objects of consumption even in these modern works and despite their progressive veneer american food films often mask a conservative politics that makes commercial success more likely a major force in mainstream entertainment american food films shape our sense of who belongs who has a voice and who has opportunities in american society they facilitate the virtual consumption of traditional notions of identity and citizenship reworking and reinforcing ingrained ideas of power buy now to get the main key ideas from stanley tucci's what i ate in one year award winning actor stanley tucci serves up a flavorful memoir of a year's worth of meals in what i ate in one year 2024 stanley who's also known for his culinary adventures often prepares italian dishes and hosts dinners he reflects on his acting career family life and the importance of food in creating connections from intimate home cooked dinners to vibrant international feasts each dish is a story of joy stanley's memoir is an ode to food emphasizing its power to shape our lives and preserve our memories in this book deborah geis offers a new approach to the evolving genre of culinary films that center on the acts of eating and cooking through close analyses of ten different films these films range from the classics like big night 1996 and babette's feast 1987 to later box office hits like chef 2014 and to films that deserve a second look like east side sushi 2014 burnt 2015 and mid august lunch 2008 throughout these analyses the book focuses on tropes including the big dinner as it connects to intercultural and transcultural communities the self-destructive perfectionism of the obsessive chef and the craft of cooking in relation to aging and mortality geis invites readers and viewers to experience food-driven narrative films with an appetite for appreciating the visual ingredients and the ways in which they construct pleasure through the act of looking as a vicarious approach to consuming the actual food drawing on the work of film theorist christian metz geis ultimately poses a new paradigm for watching and understanding culinary cinema as a significant and constantly evolving genre that comes with its own conventions and contemporary filmmakers who seek to expand and transform those conventions in surprising ways
