this is the first book to examine how effectively american and supranational eu governments have regulated innovative pharmaceuticals during the last 30 years regarding public health it explains why pharmaceutical regulation has been misdirected by commercial interests and misconceived ideologies

this book explains and investigates how medicines are controlled in europe especially the eu based on penetrating documentary and interview research with the pharmaceutical industry regulators and consumer organisations it provides the first major critical examination of the new europeanised systems of medicine regulation the authors argue that the drive to produce and approve more drugs more quickly for a single european market dominates other considerations such as improvements in democratic accountability the independence of regulators and scientific expertise from commercial interests and drug safety testing and surveillance
