full text the most famous short story of french writer guy de maupassant maupassant's early story boule de suif ball of tallow from 1880 remains a hallmark and a natural starting point it's about a prostitute whose refrain like bartleby's is that she would prefer not to in this case a prussian officer asks repeatedly for the pleasure of her intimate company and she invariably denies him unlike bartleby though boule de suif must eventually give in not by any defect of will but because of peer pressure julia roberts played a prostitute famously in pretty woman so did jodie foster in taxi driver jane fonda in klute anna karina in vivre sa vie greta garbo in anna christie and charlize theron who won an academy award for monster this engaging and generously illustrated study explores the depiction of female prostitute characters and prostitution in world cinema from the silent era to the present day industry from the woman with control over her own destiny to the woman who cannot get away from her pimp russell campbell shows the diverse representations of prostitutes in film marked women classifies fifteen recurrent character types and three common narratives many of them with their roots in male fantasy the happy hooker for example is the liberated woman whose only goal is to give as much pleasure as she receives while the avenger a nightmare of the male imagination represents the threat of women taking retribution for all the oppression they have suffered at the hands of men the love story a common narrative represents the prostitute as both heroine and anti heroine while condemned to death allows men to manifest in imagination only their hostility toward women by killing off the troubled prostitute in an act of cathartic violence the figure of the woman whose body is available at a price has fascinated and intrigued filmmakers and filmgoers since the very beginning of cinema but the manner of representation has also been highly conflicted and fiercely contested campbell explores the cinematic prostitute as a figure shaped by both reactionary thought and feminist challenges to the norm demonstrating how the film industry itself is split by fascinating contradictions the victorian freak show was at once mainstream and subversive spectacles of strange exotic and titillating bodies drew large middle class audiences in england throughout much of the nineteenth century and souvenir portraits of performing freaks even found their way into victorian family albums at the same time the imagery and practices of the freak show shocked victorian sensibilities and sparked controversy about both the boundaries of physical normalcy and morality in entertainment marketing tactics for the freak show often made use of common ideological assumptions compulsory female domesticity and british imperial authority for instance but reflected these ideas with the surreal distortion of a fun house mirror not surprisingly the popular fiction written for middle class victorian readers also calls upon imagery of extreme physical difference and the odd bodied characters that people nineteenth century fiction raise meaningful questions about the relationships between physical difference and the social expectations that shaped victorian life this book is primarily an aesthetic analysis of freak show imagery as it appears in victorian popular fiction including the works of charles dickens wilkie collins guy de maupassant florence marryat and lewis carroll it argues that in spite of a strong nineteenth century impulse to define and defend normalcy images of radical physical difference are often framed in surprisingly positive ways in victorian fiction the dwarves fat people and bearded ladies who intrude on the more conventional imagery of victorian novels serve to shift the meaning of those works main plots and characters sometimes sharpening satires of the nineteenth century treatment of the poor or disabled sometimes offering new traits and behaviors as supplements for restrictive social norms book jacket
