does biology condemn the human species to violence and war previous studies of animal behavior incline us to answer yes but the message of this book is considerably more optimistic without denying our heritage of aggressive behavior frans de waal describes powerful checks and balances in the makeup of our closest animal relatives and in so doing he shows that to humans making peace is as natural as making war in this meticulously researched and absorbing account we learn in detail how different types of simians cope with aggression and how they make peace after fights chimpanzees for instance reconcile with a hug and a kiss whereas rhesus monkeys groom the fur of former adversaries by objectively examining the dynamics of primate social interactions de waal makes a convincing case that confrontation should not be viewed as a barrier to sociality but rather as an unavoidable element upon which social relationships can be built and strengthened through reconciliation the author examines five different species chimpanzees rhesus monkeys stump tailed monkeys bonobos and humans and relates anecdotes culled from exhaustive observations that convey the intricacies and refinements of simian behavior each species utilizes its own unique peacemaking strategies the bonobo for example is little known to science and even less to the general public but this rare ape maintains peace by means of sexual behavior divorced from reproductive functions sex occurs in all possible combinations and positions whenever social tensions need to be resolved make love not war could be the bonobo slogan de waal s demonstration of reconciliation in both monkeys and apes strongly supports his thesis that forgiveness and peacemaking are widespread among nonhuman primates an aspect of primate societies that should stimulate much needed work on human conflict resolution sexual selection in primates provides an account of all aspects of sexual selection in primates combining theoretical insights comprehensive reviews of the primate literature and comparative perspectives from relevant work on other mammals birds and humans topics include sex roles sexual dimorphism in weapons ornaments and armaments sex ratios sex differences in behaviour and development mate choice sexual conflict sex specific life history strategies sperm competition and infanticide the outcome of the evolutionary struggle between the sexes the flexibility of roles and the leverage of females are discussed and emphasised throughout sexual selection in primates is aimed at graduates and researchers in primatology animal behaviour evolutionary biology and comparative psychology many complex traits define the primate condition including behaviors as fundamental as locomotion and traits as scrutinized as the dentition and their study reveals dramatic evolutionary change across the primates genetic modifications are at the basis of these changes but transformation of genetic information into phenotypes occurs at the level of the cell which is the focus of this book contributors summarize novel methodologies to analyze the collective behavior of cells in forming tissues and organs influencing physiological functions and anatomical features that enable behaviors our goal is to review current knowledge and encourage others to adopt evolutionary cell biology to aid in deciphering the genotype phenotype map that underlies the diversification of primates human variation and human evolution the contributors to this book utilize advances in genetic analysis and visualization of cells and tissues and merge evolutionary developmental biology with evolutionary cell biology to address questions central to understanding human and primate evolution key features explores mechanisms underlying trait development distribution variation and evolution especially with respect to pigmentation dental formulae the skeleton

i first became involved in research into primate behavior and ecology in 1968 over 40 years ago driven by a quest for a better understanding of the natural context of primate evolution at that time it was virtually unknown that primates can exploit exudates as a major food source i was certainly unaware of this myself by good fortune i was awarded a postdoctoral grant to work on lemurs with jean jacques petter in the general ecology division of the muséum national d histoire naturelle in brunoy france this provided the launching pad for my first field study of lesser mouse lemurs in madagascar during which i gained my initial inklings of exudate feeding it was also in brunoy that i met up with pierre charles dominique who introduced me to pioneering observations of exudate feeding he had made during his field study of five lorisiform species in gabon this opened my eyes to a key feeding adaptation that has now been reported for at least 69 primate species in 12 families smith chap 3 almost 20 of extant primate species so exudativory is now firmly established as a dietary category for p mates alongside the long recognized classes of faunivory including insectivory frugivory and folivory soon after i encountered charles dominique he published the first synthetic account of his gabon field study in a french language journal charles dominique 1971 the first edition of frans de waal s chimpanzee politics was acclaimed not only by primatologists for its scientific achievement but also by a much broader audience of politicians business leaders and social psychologists for its remarkable insights into very basic human needs and behaviors in this revised edition featuring a new gallery of color photographs along with a new introduction and epilogue de waal expands and updates his story of the arnhem colony and its continuing political upheavals we learn the fate of many memorable chimpanzees and meet the colony s current leaders and their allies the new edition remains a detailed and thoroughly engrossing account of sexual rivalries and coalitions of actions governed by intelligence rather than instinct and it reaffirms the complex bond between humans and their closest living relatives as we watch the chimpanzees of arnhem behave in ways we recognize from machiavelli and from the nightly news de waal reminds us again that the roots of politics are older than humanity the primate origins of human nature volume 3 in the foundations of human biology series blends several elements from evolutionary biology as applied to primate behavioral ecology and primate psychology classical physical anthropology and evolutionary psychology of humans however unlike similar books it strives to define the human species relative to our living and extinct relatives and thus highlights uniquely derived human features the book features a truly multi disciplinary multi theory and comparative species approach to subjects not usually presented in textbooks focused on humans such as the evolution of culture life history parenting and social organization in a world where conflict is never ending this thoughtful compilation fosters a new appreciation of the art of peacemaking as it is understood and practiced in a variety of contemporary settings peacemaking from practice to theory is about seeing knowing and learning peacemaking as it exists in the real world built on the premise that peacemaking is among the most elemental of human experiences this seminal work emphasizes the importance of practice and lived experiences in understanding the process and learning what works to nurture peace to appropriately reflect the diversity of peacemaking practices challenges and innovations these two volumes bring together many authors and viewpoints the first volume consists of two sections peacemaking in practice and towards an inclusive peacemaking the second of two additional sections new directions in peacemaking and interpreting peacemaking as the title states the work moves peacemaking beyond mere theory showcasing peacemaking efforts produced recorded recognized and understood by a variety of individuals and institutions in doing so it refocuses the study of peacemaking and guides readers to a systematic understanding and appreciation of the practices of peacemakers around the globe
