learning the left examines the ways in which young people and adults learned and continue to learn the tenets of liberal politics in the united states through the popular media and the arts from the turn of the twentieth century to the present this collection of essays foregrounds mass culture as an educational site it is hoped that this focus on the history of the civic functions of the popular media and arts will begin a much needed conversation among a variety of scholars notably historians of education in this powerful and culminating work about a group of inner city children he has known for many years jonathan kozol returns to the scene of his prize winning books rachel and her children and amazing grace and to the children he has vividly portrayed to share with us their fascinating journeys and unexpected victories as they grow into adulthood for nearly fifty years jonathan has pricked the conscience of his readers by laying bare the savage inequalities inflicted upon children for no reason but the accident of being born to poverty within a wealthy nation a winner of the national book award the robert f kennedy book award and countless other honors he has persistently crossed the lines of class and race first as a teacher then as the author of tender and heart breaking books about the children he has called the outcasts of our nation s ingenuity but jonathan is not a distant and detached reporter his own life has been radically transformed by the children who have trusted and befriended him never has this intimate acquaintance with his subjects been more apparent or more stirring than in fire in the ashes as jonathan tells the stories of young men and women who have come of age in one of the most destitute communities of the united states some of them never do recover from the battering they undergo in their early years but many more battle back with fierce and often jubilant determination to overcome the formidable obstacles they face as we watch these glorious children grow into the fullness of a healthy and contributive maturity they ignite a flame of hope not only for themselves but for our society the urgent issues that confront our urban schools a devastating race gap a pathological regime of obsessive testing and drilling students for exams instead of giving them the rich curriculum that excites a love of learning are interwoven through these stories why certain children rise above it all graduate from high school and do well in college while others are defeated by the time they enter adolescence lies at the essence of this work jonathan kozol is the author of Death at an Early Age Savage Inequalities and other books on children and their education he has been called today's most eloquent spokesman for america's disenfranchised but he believes young people speak most eloquently for themselves and in this book so full of the vitality and spontaneity of youth we hear their testimony an exploration of moral stress distress and injuries inherent in modern society through the maps that pervade academic and public communications worlds in Ethics in Everyday Places ethicist and geographer tom koch considers what happens when as he puts it you do everything right but know you've done something wrong the resulting moral stress and injury he argues are pervasive in modern western society koch makes his argument from the ground up from the perspective of average persons and through a revealing series of maps in which issues of ethics and morality are embedded the book begins with a general grounding in both moral stress and mapping as a means of investigation the author then examines the ethical dilemmas of mapmakers and others in the popular media and the sciences including graphic artists journalists researchers and social scientists koch expands from the particular to the general from mapmaker and journalist to the readers of maps and news he explores the moral stress and injury in educational funding poverty and income inequality why aren't we angry that one in eight fellow citizens lives in federally certified poverty transportation modeling seen in the iconic map of the london transit system and the hidden realities of exclusion and u.s. graft organ transplantation this uniquely interdisciplinary work rewrites our understanding of the nature of moral stress distress and injury and ethics in modern life written accessibly and engagingly it transforms how we think of ethics personal and professional amid the often conflicting moral injunctions across modern society copublished with esri press the failure of alternative and continuation schools to educate our most vulnerable adolescent populations is slowly eliminating them from our educational landscapes millions of struggling teens lacking options are being set adrift without the necessary capabilities and without hope but recent research can provide avenues of change to lead these student populations to academic achievement equipping educators with both the theoretical framework and a range of practical applications for program and classroom improvements beyond dropping out provides a look into successful alternative education that will elevate academic strugglers to academic successes
