lessons from the personal experience and reflections of a therapist the difficulty and cost of training psychotherapists properly is well known it is far easier to provide a series of classes while ignoring the more challenging personal components of training despite the fact that the therapist's self insight emotional maturity and calm centeredness are critical for successful psychotherapy rote knowledge and technical skills are the focus of most training programs as a result the therapist's personal growth is either marginalized or ignored the making of a therapist counters this trend by offering graduate students and beginning therapists a personal account of this important inner journey cozolino provides a unique look inside the mind and heart of an experienced therapist readers will find an exciting and privileged window into the experience of the therapist who like themselves is just starting out in addition the making of a therapist contains the practical advice common sense wisdom and self disclosure that practicing professionals have found to be the most helpful during their own training the first part of the book getting through your first sessions takes readers through the often perilous days and weeks of conducting initial sessions with real clients cozolino addresses such basic concerns as do i need to be completely healthy myself before i can help others what do i do if someone comes to me with an issue or problem i can t handle what should i do if i have trouble listening to my clients what if a client scares me the second section of the book getting to know your clients delves into the routine of therapy and the subsequent stages in which you continue to work with clients and help them in this context cozolino presents the notion of the good enough therapist one who can surrender to his or her own imperfections while still guiding the therapeutic relationship to a positive outcome the final section getting to know yourself goes to the core of the therapist s relation to him or herself addressing such issues as how to turn your weaknesses into strengths and how to deal with the complicated issues of pathological caretaking countertransference and self care both an excellent introduction to the field as well as a valuable refresher for the experienced clinician the making of a therapist offers readers the tools and insight that make the journey of becoming a therapist a rich and rewarding experience an updated revision of jeffrey kottler s classic book reveals the new realities and inner experiences of therapeutic practice today for more than 25 years on being a therapist has inspired generations of mental health professionals to explore the most private and sacred aspects of their work helping others in this new edition he explores many of the challenges that therapists face related to increased technology surprising research the internet advances in theory and technique as well as stress in the international and global economy managed care bureaucracy patients with anxiety and depression from unemployment dysfunctional families poor education poverty parenting issues often court mandated consequently there s a wealth of new information that explores many forbidden subjects that are rarely admitted much less talked about openly goes deeper than ever before into the inner world of therapist s hopes and fears written by jeffrey kottler the conscience of the profession for his willingness to be so honest authentic and courageous new chapters explore dealing with failures reluctant patients how clients change therapists and more there is also increased focus on the therapist s role and responsibility to promote issues of social justice human rights and systemic changes within the community and world at large most therapists regardless of theoretical approach intuitively recognize that their sense of self intimately influences their work using this elemental truth as a launching pad rowan and jacobson articulate the different avenues through which the self informs therapy and how each can be used to improve therapeutic effectiveness along the way the authors provide a masterful exposition of transference countertransference and projective identification throwing much needed light on topics that have long been mired in controversy and confusion the book is a priceless resource for experienced therapists and those just beginning the journey professor sheldon cashadan author of object relations therapy and the witch must die the hidden meaning of fairy tales outstandingly in the current literature this book meets the conditions for integrative psychotherapy to fulfil its undoubted potential as the therapy pathway of the future much has to change in our field first people have to become better informed and more respectful of other traditions than their own engaging with all kinds of taboo topics next vigorous but contained dispute has to take place without having a bland synthesis as its goal finally the current situation in which integration runs in one direction only humanistic and transpersonal therapists learning from psychoanalysis has to be altered rowan and jacobson each a master in his own field have done a wonderful collaborative job the book's focus on what different ways of being a therapist really mean in practice guarantees its relevance for therapists of all schools or none and at every level andrew samuels professor of analytical psychology university of essex and visiting professor of psychoanalytic studies goldsmith's college university of london there is no question in psychotherapy more important than the degree to which the practitioner should be natural and spontaneous would it be sensible to leave one's ordinary everyday personality behind when entering the consulting room and adopt a stance based on learned techniques this is the question addressed by rowan jacobson in the therapist's use of self approaching it from various angles and discussing the relevant ideas of different schools of thought the authors are very well informed and write with admirable clarity directness and wisdom and have made an impressive contribution to a problem to which there is no easy solution dr peter lomas author of doing good psychotherapy out of its depth this book deals with what is perhaps the central question in therapy who is the therapist and how does that actually come across and manifest itself in the therapeutic relationship a good deal of the thinking about this in psychoanalysis has come under the heading of countertransference much of the thinking in the humanistic approaches has come under such headings as empathy genuineness nonpossessive warmth presence personhood these two streams of thinking about the therapist's own self provide much material for the bulk of the book but other aspects of the therapist also enter the picture including the way a therapist is trained and uses supervision in order to make fuller use of her or his own reactions responses and experience in working with any one client the book is aimed primarily at counsellors and psychotherapists or trainees in these disciplines it has been written in a way that is accessible to students at all levels but it is also of particular value to existing practitioners with an interest in the problems of integration
