this book investigates four core characteristics of occupational health and safety legal systems in order to provide a comparative and critical analysis of the similarities and differences in protecting the health and safety of workers at the workplace in addition to analysing the health and safety regulations the book addresses corresponding oversight and enforcement mechanisms it compares and contrasts five different legal systems namely those of the eu the netherlands the uk sweden and china beyond offering an overview of the modes of ohs regulation instruments and legal enforcement practices the book helps to answer the question of how to improve working environments in order to protect workers from all kinds of dangers encountered at the workplace the intended readership includes researchers with a background in labour law comparative law chinese law and or european union law this eye opening book shows how the rights of workers to safe and healthful workplaces are under greater attack today than at any time since the passage of the landmark occupational safety and health act in 1970 this collection is organized around three thematic issues that pose significant challenges to the occupational safety and health administration s ability to protect workers safety and health first the economy has shifted from an industrial base to a white collar service base which includes more women workers than ever before yet many of the safety and health problems that affect keeping the economy running must be balanced with workers welfare and wider public health objectives the evidence we have is that this balance is not currently being achieved with far too many people facing unnecessary risk it remains unclear to many of our members why the social distancing and public health measures they are being asked to take at home and in the community are no longer always required nor enforced when they enter the workplace we therefore call on the government to provide further direction to employers on what they need to do to ensure safe working and to set out the enforcement action that they will take against those that refuse
