the special session on decision economics decon is a scientific forum held annually and intended to share ideas projects research results models and experiences associated with the complexity of behavioural decision processes and socio economic phenomena decon 2017 was held at the polytechnic of porto isep portugal as part of the 14th international conference on distributed computing and artificial intelligence for the second consecutive year the editors of this book have drawn inspiration from herbert a simon s immense body of work and argue that simon precipitated something akin to a revolution in microeconomics focused on the concept of decision making further it is worth noting that the recognition of relevant decision making takes place in a range of critical subject areas and research fields including economics finance information systems small and international business management operations and production therefore decision making issues are of fundamental importance in all branches of economics addressed both deductively and inductively not surprisingly the study of decision making has seen growing empirical research efforts in the economic literature over the last sixty years and more recently a variety of insightful cutting edge experimental behavioural and computational approaches additionally the awareness regarding generalizations and reductions to express economic concepts has led on the one hand to an increasing risk of spreading the language of mathematics as a rhetorical tool and on the other hand to an oversimplification and overlooking of some crucial details especially when it comes to human decisions and hence economic behaviour that awareness however has helped to produce an extraordinary volume of empirical research aimed at discovering how economic agents cope with complex decisions in this sense the international scientific community acknowledges herbert a simon s research endeavours to understand the processes involved in economic decision making and their implications for the advancement of economic professions within the field of decision making indeed simon s rejection of the standard decision making models used in neoclassical economics inspired social scientists worldwide to develop research programmes in order to study decision making empirically the main achievements concern decision making for individuals firms markets governments institutions and last but not least science and research explores dream interpretation among the early muslims who saw dreams as a type of prophecy in this book peter ahrensdorf explores an overlooked but crucial role that homer played in the thought of plato machiavelli and nietzsche concerning notably the relationship between politics religion and philosophy and in their debates about human nature morality the proper education for human excellence and the best way of life by studying homer in conjunction with these three political philosophers ahrensdorf demonstrates that homer was himself a philosophical thinker and educator he presents the full force of plato s critique of homer and the paramount significance of plato s achievement in winning honor for philosophy ahrensdorf also makes possible an appreciation of the powerful concerns expressed by machiavelli and nietzsche regarding that achievement by uncovering and bringing to life the rich philosophic conversation among these four foundational thinkers ahrensdorf shows that there are many ways of living a philosophic life his book broadens and deepens our understanding of what a philosopher is a major path breaking work history medicine and the traditions of renaissance learning is nancy g siraisi s examination into the intersections of medically trained authors and history in the period 1450 to 1650 rather than studying medicine and history as separate disciplinary traditions siraisi calls attention to their mutual interaction in the rapidly changing world of renaissance erudition far from their contributions being a mere footnote in the historical record medical writers had extensive involvement in the reading production and shaping of historical knowledge during this important period with remarkably detailed scholarship siraisi investigates doctors efforts to explore the legacies handed down to them from ancient medical and anatomical writings and the difficult reconciliations this required between the authority of the ancient world and the discoveries of the modern she also studies the ways in which sixteenth century medical authors wrote history both in their own medical texts and in more general historical works in the course of her study siraisi finds that what allowed medical writers to become so fully engaged in the writing of history was their general humanistic background their experience of history through the field of medicine's past and the tools that the writing of history offered to the development of a rapidly evolving profession nancy g siraisi is one of the preeminent scholars of medieval and renaissance intellectual history specializing in medicine and science now distinguished professor emerita of history at hunter college and the graduate center city university of new york and a 2008 winner of a john d and catherine t macarthur foundation fellowship she has written numerous books including taddeo alderotti and his pupils princeton 1981 which won the american association for the history of medicine william h welch medal avicenna in renaissance italy princeton 1987 the clock and the mirror princeton 1997 and the widely used textbook medieval and early renaissance medicine chicago 1990 which won the watson davis and helen miles davis prize from the history of science society in 2003 siraisi received the history of science society's george sarton medal in 2004 she received the paul oskar kristellar award for lifetime achievement of the renaissance society of america and in 2005 she was awarded the american historical association award for scholarly distinction a fascinating study of renaissance physicians as avid readers and enthusiastic writers of all kinds of history from case narratives and medical biographies to archaeological and environmental histories in this wide ranging book nancy siraisi demonstrates the deep links between the medical and the humanistic disciplines in early modern europe katharine park zemurray stone radcliffe professor of the history of science harvard university this is a salient but little explored aspect of renaissance humanism and there is no doubt that siraisi has succeeded in throwing light onto a vast subject the scholarship is wide ranging and profound and breaks new ground the choice of examples is fascinating and it puts renaissance documents into a new context this is a major book well written richly learned and with further implications for more than students of medical history vivian nutton professor the wellcome trust centre for the history of medicine university college london and author of from democedes to harvey studies in the history of medicine siraisi shows the many dimensioned overlaps and interactions between medicine and history in the early modern period marking a pioneering effort to survey a neglected discipline her book follows the changing usage of the classical term history both as empiricism and as a kind of scholarship in the renaissance before its more modern analytical and critical applications it is a marvel of erudition in an area insufficiently studied donald r kelley emeritus james westfall thompson professor of history
