Robertson's study of the books of Nahum, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah is a contribution to the new international commentary on the Old Testament, a commentary which strives to achieve a balance between technical information and homiletic devotional interpretation. The commentary proper is based on the author's own translation of the Hebrew text.

Nahum prophesies the destruction of Nineveh. Habakkuk questions the Lord of Israel. Zephaniah warns the last great king of Jerusalem. David W. Baker examines the authorship, composition, structure, and historical context of each book and highlights the authors' major themes.

In this commentary, Thomas Renz reads Nahum, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah as three carefully crafted writings of enduring relevance, each of which makes a vital contribution to the biblical canon. Discussing the historical settings, Renz takes up both long-standing issues such as the relationship of Zephaniah to Josiah's reforms and the socioeconomic conditions of the time suggested by recent archaeological research. The place of these writings within the Book of the Twelve is given fresh consideration, including the question of what one should make of the alleged redaction history of Nahum and Habakkuk. The author's careful translation of the text comes with detailed textual notes illuminating some of the Bible's most outstanding poetry. Nahum and one of the biblical chapters that is among the most difficult to translate, Habakkuk 3, the thorough verse-by-verse commentary is followed by stimulating theological reflection opening up avenues for teaching and preaching from these prophetic writings. No matter their previous familiarity with these and other minor prophets, scholars, pastors, and lay readers alike will find needed guidance in working through these difficult but important books of the Bible.
