mahoney s starting point is the problem of essentialism in social science essentialism the belief that the members of a category possess hidden properties essences that make them members of the category and that endow them with a certain nature is appropriate for scientific categories atoms for instance but not for human ones revolutions for instance despite this much social science research takes place from within an essentialist orientation those who reject this assumption goes so far in the other direction as to reject the idea of an external reality independent of human beings altogether mahoney proposes an alternative approach that aspires to bridge this enduring rift in the social sciences between those who take a scientific approach and assume that social science categories correspond to external reality and thus believe that the methods used in the natural sciences are generally appropriate for the social sciences and those who take a constructivist approach and believe that because the categories used to understand the social world are humanly constructed they cannot possibly follow the science of the natural world as the name suggests scientific constructivism brings in aspects of both views and attempts to unite them drawing from cognitive science it focuses on using the rational parts of our brain machinery to overcome the limitations and deeply seated biases such as essentialism of our evolved minds specifically mahoney puts forth a set theoretic analysis that focuses on sets of categories as they exist in the mind that are also subject to the mathematical logic of set theory he spends the first four chapters of the book establishing the foundations and methods for set theoretic analysis the next four chapters looking and how this analysis fits with the existing tools of social science and the final four chapters focusing on how this approach can be used to study and understand cases
