contemporary researchers have analysed dialogue primarily in terms of instruction conversation or inquiry there is an irreducible tension when the terms dialogue and instruction are brought together because the former implies an emergent process of give and take whereas the latter implies a sequence of predetermined moves it is argued that effective teachers have learned how to perform in this contradictory space to both follow and lead to be both responsive and directive to require both independence and receptiveness from learners instructional dialogue therefore is an artful performance rather than a prescribed technique dialogues also may be structured as conversations which function to build consensus conformity to everyday ritualistic practices and a sense of community the dark side of the dialogic we and the community formed around our and us is the inevitable boundary that excludes them and theirs when dialogues are structured to build consensus and community critical reflection on the bases of that consensus is required and vigilance to ensure that difference and diversity are not being excluded or assimilated see renschaw 2002 again it is argued that there is an irreducible tension here because understanding and appreciating diversity can be achieved only through engagement and living together in communities teachers who work to create such communities in their classrooms need to balance the need for common practices with the space to be different resistant or challenging again an artful performance that is difficult to articulate in terms of specific teaching techniques issues of assessing and evaluating learning and teaching have become a dominant concern in recent years not only among those professionally involved in education but in the community generally this is especially true of literacy learning yet many teachers have a developing sense of unease with the traditional methods of evaluation they are expected to use responsive evaluation describes the journey of a group of classroom teachers administrators and researchers as they addressed the issues of evaluation and assessment they wanted to find a model that was congruent with the way literacy is taught and which would convince parents and the general public that there were credible alternatives to traditional methods of evaluating learning they found their answers in responsive evaluation and share them in this book
