in the story of post modernism charles jencks the authority on post modern architecture and culture provides the defining account of post modern architecture from its earliest roots in the early 60s to the present day by breaking the narrative into seven distinct chapters which are both chronological and overlapping jencks charts the ebb and flow of the movement the peaks and troughs of different ideas and themes the book is highly visual as well as providing a chronological account of the movement each chapter also has a special feature on the major works of a given period the first up to date narrative of post modern architecture other major books on the subject were written 20 years ago an accessible narrative that will appeal to students who are new to the subject as well as those who can remember its heyday in the 70s and 80s in this latest issue of architectural design the guest editors are drawn like the content from contrasting tastes and generations charles jencks the definer of post modernism for thirty years discusses some issues that have re emerged today while the young group of british architects fat argues for a particular version of rpm an interview between rem koolhaas and charles jencks discusses the influence of post modernism while investigations of street art graffiti and the 1980 venice biennale show that communication is at the heart of this radical strain of architecture this issue brings together an unlikely and exciting pairing of guest editors internationally acclaimed critic charles jencks whose name became synonymous with post modernism in the 80s and the dynamic architectural group fat features work by arm atelier bow wow Édouard françois foa rem koolhaas john and valerio olgiati landforms are a fast developing art form that enjoy a wide following today because of their multiple uses and their enveloping beauty as formal landscapes that often arise from necessity recycling a coal site for human use or making new use of excess earth they are a pleasure to walk over and through in this collection of his recent work charles jencks explains his particular approach to the landform like the prehistoric earthworks of britain that have been an inspiration such as stonehenge his landforms contain cosmic symbolism and they draw together sculpture epigraphy water gardens scrap metal and architecture they address perennial themes identity patterns of nature death and the power of life but in a contemporary way based on the insights of science so jencks portrays universal aspects of dna the spacetime warp of a black hole the extraordinary way cells divide and unite and some basic forms of life other designs include sharp comments on recent events a water garden of war in france critiques the 2003 invasion of iraq using waterpults and hose guns among other interactive features a white garden made from birch trees flying bones and computer graphics deals with some fatal consequences of modernity jencks addresses with wit and irony some of the strange possibilities that arise with extra large landforms northumberlandia perhaps the largest human figure ever made presents the question of which body parts one can walk on safely which are dangerous and which need to be suppressed what became perhaps the heaviest work of art in the world at 20 million tons was also the opportunity to transform a large open cast mine into a dynamic landscape of giant mounds and sculpted lakes as in his the garden of cosmic speculation to which this book is a sequel jencks seeks to define a new landscape iconography based on forms and themes that may be eternal in the sense that they crystallise nature s laws some of which have been recently discovered to see a world in a grain of sand was a poetic quest of william blake and in a different sense to find the universe in a ritual landscape was a goal of prehistoric cultures jencks allies these spiritual affinities with the view of science that stresses the common patterns that underlie all parts of the cosmos thus making them like our home planet and the universe in a landscape this companion text to the author s learning to look at paintings addresses some of the questions most commonly asked about modern art covering key movements of the modern and postmodern periods in a richly illustrated and engaging volume in an age dominated by nationalism and ethnic conflict charles jencks argues that these reactionary tendencies can be countered by an equally powerful drive heterophilia the love of difference the desire to seek out new experience and curiosity all of these are essential to the creation of a new form of city the heteropolis epitomized by los angeles with over one hundred ethnic groups forty different lifestyle clusters eighty languages spoken in the schools and extraordinarily different flora and fauna los angeles diversity has now become one of its main drawing points and problems precariously balanced between civil unrest and the creative enjoyment of difference it is something towards which other world cities with their mass migration and global trade are heading the hetero architecture of los angeles suggests a way beyond the present impasse between the fundamentalists and the multiculturalists a third position which diffuses confrontation with creative displacement and inclusive eclecticism the strange beauty of hetero architecture embraces variety its informality allows marginalized groups to feel at home and its unusual metaphors suggest our connection to the natural world frank gehry eric owen moss morphosis frank israel and charles moore are its visible leaders but there is also a vernacular and funk version of the genre as well as the populist versions of jon jerde and disneyland the philosophy of hetero architecture accepts difference as a necessity and turns it into a virtue with an informal aesthetic at once polyglot abstract and representational that is radically eclectic and inclusive in an understated way the l a style as it is known bears affinities with other aesthetics such as the wabi and sabi style of the japanese with many world cities now facing increasing pluralization the heteropolis is bound to become a major urban form of the future

a classic account which when written in 1977 was the first to define post modernism in architecture an event which led to subsequent adoption of the term in many other fields it is the story of the failure of modern architecture to communicate with its users and the attempt of post modernists to overcome this failure with a richer more widely shared language post modern classicism google books a sharp and lively text that covers issues in depth but not to the point that they become inaccessible to beginning students an introduction to architectural theory is the first narrative history of this period charting the veritable revolution in architectural thinking that has taken place as well as the implications of this intellectual upheaval the first comprehensive and critical history of architectural theory over the last fifty years surveys the intellectual history of architecture since 1968 including criticisms of high modernism the rise of postmodern and poststructural theory critical regionalism and tectonics offers a comprehensive overview of the significant changes that architectural thinking has undergone in the past fifteen years includes an analysis of where architecture stands and where it will likely move in the coming years postmodernism has become the buzzword of contemporary society yet it remains baffling in its variety of definitions contexts and associations beginning postmodernism aims to offer clear accessible and step by step introductions to postmodernism across a wide range of subjects it encourages readers to explore how the debates about postmodernism have emerged from basic philosophical and cultural ideas with its emphasis firmly on postmodernism in practice the book contains exercises and questions designed to help readers understand and reflect upon a variety of positions in the following areas of contemporary culture philosophy and cultural theory architecture and concepts of space visual art sculpture and the design arts popular culture and music film video and television culture and the social sciences this pocket sized publication of the mondrian lecture given by charles jencks reprints his talk in full along with various images jencks discusses the possibility that architecture and well being can have a direct correlation exploring how architecture can influence society business productivity profits and hospitals he elaborates with examples of architectural determinism from both ancient and modern history with a special focus on his experience with the maggie s centres cancer care centres set up throughout britain by jencks and designed by famous architects whose purpose is to experiment with these ideas boredom is a ubiquitous feature of modern life endured by everyone it is both cause and effect of modernity and of situations spaces and surroundings as such this book argues boredom shares an intimate relationship with architecture one that has been seldom explored in architectural history and theory boredom architecture and spatial experience investigates that relationship showing how an understanding of boredom affords us a new way of looking at and understanding the modern experience it reconstructs a series of episodes in architectural history from the 19th century to the present to survey how boredom became a normalized component of the everyday how it infiltrated into the production and reception of architecture and how it serves to diagnose moments of crisis in the continuous transformations of the built environment erudite and innovative the work moves deftly from architectural theory and philosophy to literature and psychology to make its case combining archival material scholarly sources and illuminating excerpts from conversations with practitioners and thinkers including charles jencks rem koolhaas sylvia lavin and jorge silvetti it reveals the complexity and importance of boredom in architecture
