Michel Foucault has become famous for a series of books that have permanently altered our understanding of many institutions of western society he analyzed mental institutions in the remarkable madness and civilization hospitals in the birth of the clinic prisons in discipline and punish and schools and families in the history of sexuality but the general reader as well as the specialist is apt to miss the consistent purposes that lay behind these difficult individual studies thus losing sight of the broad social vision and political aims that unified them now in this superb set of essays and interviews Foucault has provided a much needed guide to Foucault these pieces ranging over the entire spectrum of his concerns enabled Foucault in his most intimate and accessible voice to interpret the conclusions of his research in each area and to demonstrate the contribution of each to the magnificent and terrifying portrait of society that he was patiently compiling for as Foucault shows what he was always describing was the nature of power in society not the conventional treatment of power that concentrates on powerful individuals and repressive institutions but the much more pervasive and insidious mechanisms by which power reaches into the very grain of individuals touches their bodies and inserts itself into their actions and attitudes their discourses learning processes and everyday lives Foucault's investigations of prisons schools barracks hospitals factories cities lodgings families and other organized forms of social life are each a segment of one of the most astonishing intellectual enterprises of all time and as this book proves one which possesses profound implications for understanding the social control of our bodies and our minds foucault and social dialogue beyond fragmentation is a compelling yet extremely clear investigation of these options and offers a new way forward christopher falzon argues that the proper alternative to foundationalism is not fragmentation but dialogue and that such a dialogical picture can be found in the work of michel foucault such a reading of foucault allows us to see for the first time the ethical and political position implicit in foucault's work and how his work contributes to the larger debate concerning the death of man although foucault departs from marxism his own approach constitutes a form of consistent materialism which has theoretical implications for the analysis of social and educational discursive systems in seeking to demonstrate a correct reading of foucault linguistic readings of his work such as those of christopher norris 1993 which represent him as part of the linguistic turn in french philosophy where language or representation henceforth defines the limits of thought will be dispelled in the process of being corrected rather foucault will be represented as habermas 1987 has suggested not merely as a historicist but at the same time as a nominalist materialist and empiricist because the distinctiveness of foucault's approach can best be seen in contrast to other major philosophical systems and thinkers considerable attention is given to examining foucault's relationship to marxism as well as his relations to kant gramsci habermas and the greeks in relation to education there is in foucault's approach a double emphasis which constitutes an ordering principle for this work on the one hand attention is directed to discursive practices which perform an educative role in the constitution of subjects and of human forms of existence on the other hand forms of education are constituted and utilized for the purposes of collective ethical self creation a theme foucault emphasized in his later works the book assesses some of the more interesting recent utilizations of foucault in educational research
