this book deals with the challenges of teaching the english language and literature in the middle east and north africa region with a special focus on the gulf countries it consists of different articles by an international group of educators and scholars who have first hand experience in teaching the english language and its literatures in this region the contributors not only investigate student attitudes cultural political and administrative obstacles and challenges but they also embark upon soul searching journeys in which they examine their own attitudes teaching strategies cultural prejudices and preconceptions and personal responses to their teaching environments they also explore from their own personal experiences the crisis in the humanities cultural hegemony ethics in translation cross cultural encounters pedagogical challenges textuality and second language acquisition among other issues and concerns as such the book represents both a scholarly investigation and a colorful palette of personal experience and response to human encounters in the classroom assessment on college campuses has a sordid history and it is fairly simple to find someone with a traumatic tale to tell it is wise to respect that that reputation is deserved how do you modify the inner workings and culture of a massive institution with minimal resources and even less authority other than ge course approvals and thousands and thousands of talented people busy doing other things the road to departmental assessment can seem both dramatic and apocalyptic especially if one s departmental centre cannot hold and purpose falls apart the department of english and linguistics is presently on this journey slouching towards its own revelations of mission and fulfillment of purpose i have become more optimistic about the potential value of the process even if some of my initial skepticism remains this skepticism however has been valuable forcing me to think in more concrete ways about what i do in the classroom as these excerpts show this is no conventional book about assessment it presents the unvarnished first person accounts of fourteen faculty and administrators about how they grappled and engaged with assessment and how despite misgivings and an often contentious process they were able to gain the collaboration of their peers as the benefits for student learning became evident this is a book for skeptical faculty for those who have been tasked to spearhead their institutions call to create a culture of assessment and on campuses where assessment has been widely accepted and implemented for those who now need to ensure this commitment will endure for all these audiences this book offers valuable advice strategies models and ideas what works at historically black colleges and universities hbcus nine strategies for increasing retention and graduation rates will have broad appeal within the field of education and beyond while the primary audience for this book is the faculty staff administrators students alumni and campus community of the current 105 hbcus in the united states this book is written to appeal to all professionals in the field of higher education guidance counselors and administrators in p 12 education sociologists and social scientists and scholars who study change management outcomes assessment and success in any organized structure or system kay gallagher gathers insightful research from across the lower arabian gulf to uncover the richness and diversity of world englishes within the contemporary arab gulf states her volume presents novel research from this emerging nexus of rapid economic social and linguistic development the countries of the lower arabian gulf bahrain kuwait oman qatar saudi arabia and the united arab emirates have to varying degrees harnessed english as an internal working language and as a means to communicate globally gulf countries that have not featured much in the western literature to date are highlighted in this volume including bahrain and kuwait and the use of english in the emerging colossus of saudi arabia is examined novel insights from more prominent locations are presented here for the first time including the use of english to counter negative islamic stereotypes during the fifa world cup 2022 in qatar and its role in ensuring safety in a multilingual high risk industry in the uae new research into the challenges encountered in english medium higher education in oman and kuwait is reported also the linguistic features of gulf english are explored and the interplay and tensions between arabic and english and other languages are addressed the englishes of expatriate populations in the gulf are examined including the english identity of majority and minority resident transnational groups the issue of whether a distinctive variety of gulf english has emerged in this multilingual melting pot characterized by transience and flux is debatable and the establishment of gulf english as an endonormative new variety remains elusive this book will appeal to those with an interest in world englishes in general as well as those who are interested in the roles and varieties of english in use in this globally unique and rapidly evolving context the six states of the lower gulf bahrain kuwait oman qatar saudi arabia and the united arab emirates uae form an economic and political alliance known as the gulf cooperation council gcc the region's oil rich economies have attracted millions of migrant workers both blue collar and white collar from east and west transnational workers have brought linguistic diversity along with multiple varieties of english to this traditionally arabic speaking region amplifying an increased internal demand for english such that english is shifting in the gulf from a foreign language to a lingua franca the current trend toward machine scoring of student work ericsson and haswell argue has created an emerging issue with implications for higher education across the disciplines but with particular importance for those in english departments and in administration the academic community has been silent on the issue some would say excluded from it while the commercial entities who develop essay scoring software have been very active machine scoring of student essays is the first volume to seriously consider the educational mechanisms and consequences of this trend and it offers important discussions from some of the leading scholars in writing assessment reading and evaluating student writing is a time consuming process yet it is a vital part of both student placement and coursework at post secondary institutions in recent years commercial computer evaluation programs have been developed to score student essays in both of these contexts two year colleges have been especially drawn to these programs but four year institutions are moving to them as well because of the cost savings they promise unfortunately to a large extent the programs have been written and institutions are installing them without attention to their instructional validity or adequacy since the education software companies are moving so rapidly into what they perceive as a promising new market a wider discussion of machine scoring is vital if scholars hope to influence development and or implementation of the programs being created what is needed then is a critical resource to help teachers and administrators evaluate programs they might be considering and to more fully envision the instructional consequences of adopting them and this is the resource that ericsson and haswell are providing here
