main chapters takes on one challenge each also includes an empirical case study from social reasoning in chimpanzees to foraging in honeybees to consciousness in octopuses along the way a big picture framework emerges for drawing conclusions about animal minds based on experimental evidence in this framework the role of any individual piece of the science is limited any individual experiment model claim or argument can only tell us so much when we are appropriately modest about each piece conclusions about animal minds must be arrived at by holistically considering all the evidence we can get this is a work in the philosophy of science but it is written to be accessible to any philosopher interested in empirical issues relating to the mind researchers in any of the related sciences including psychology neuroscience ethology and evolutionary biology as well as intermediate to advanced students
